A work of the very greatest importance for the history of the second half of the nineteenth century. In these volumes will be found unpublished letters from such celebrities as Matthew Arnold, the late Duke of Bedford, John Bright, Mr. Gladstone, and Cardinal Newman, as well as many of Lord Coleridge's own letters to his father, Sir John Taylor Coleridge, from school, from college, during the progress of the Tichborne trial, and after he was Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas.

INDIA

By Colonel Sir THOMAS HUNGERFORD HOLDICH, K.C.M.G., K.C.I.E., C.B., R.E., Late Superintendent, Survey of India. With maps and diagrams. $2.50 net. Postage additional.

India is near the center upon which the eyes of the world are riveted at the present time. In view of current events—the Tibetan expedition and the Russo-Japanese war—as well as from the interest of the subject itself, this book should be in great demand.

D. APPLETON & COMPANY ♪ Publishers ♪ NEW YORK

IN 1896 we published the first volume of the TRUE BIOGRAPHIES. PAUL LEICESTER FORD was the author and his subject was GEORGE WASHINGTON. Since then we have published four other volumes dealing with WILLIAM PENN, BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, THOMAS JEFFERSON and ABRAHAM LINCOLN. Every one of these books has sold largely and is selling well to-day. Each new volume makes fresh demand for the previous volumes. We have now ready a new book in this series. It is entitled

THE True Henry Clay

It is written by Joseph M. Rogers, formerly an editor of McClure's Magazine, and well known for his contributions to the magazines on history, biography and political subjects. Mr. Rogers was born in the Clay country. His father's place adjoined that of the Clays. For thirty years he has made a study of Clay. In preparing his book he had access to all the private papers now in possession of the Clay family, who gave him every assistance. His book gives the most complete and interesting story of Clay as a statesman and man that has ever been put into print. It is filled with anecdotes that every reader will remember and repeat. It has twenty-four illustrations, most of them from photographs made especially for the work.

Our advance orders on this book have been heavy; it is a sure seller as long as people read books that are worth while. It is uniform in size, binding, and general appearance with the other volumes of the series. We have it in cloth at a retail price of $2.00 net, and in half morocco at $5.00 net. Handsome Poster.

NOTE:—As a Christmas gift for the man or woman, or younger reader of serious mind, you are perfectly safe in suggesting

THE TRUE HENRY CLAY

The other day one of the largest booksellers in this country told us: "You have a gift book this season which ought to be the biggest seller of its kind. It has the right sort of pictures and plenty of them; and the story is the sweetest and most winning piece of romance I've read for a long time." He was speaking of RALPH HENRY BARBOUR's story

Kitty of the Roses

Another printing of KITTY OF THE ROSES is now on press. We have sold the book as fast as our printing establishment could supply copies. We will be up with our orders with this new edition—unless the demand takes another big jump. If you want to keep in this book for the Christmas buying we should hear from you at once.

KITTY OF THE ROSES has full-page illustrations in three colors and illustrations or decorations in tint on every page. It has a portrait cover in colors, can be furnished in rose, rich red or delicate gray cloth, and is offered in a box with an illustrated top in colors. Poster in Colors. The retail price is $2.00.

NOTES IN SEASON.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish on the 10th inst. Mrs. Maybrick's book entitled "My Fifteen Lost Years." Much will be told in the book that has never appeared elsewhere.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish on January 14, Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s, new novel, "The Clansman." This novel, said to be the most ambitious work thus far attempted by Mr. Dixon, deals with the Ku Klux Klan in the South in the stirring days of the "Reconstruction." The early scenes of the story are laid in Washington during the time when Thaddeus Stevens practically held the reins of government.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS will publish on the 15th inst. a Pulpit edition of the "American Standard Revised Bible," a handsome quarto volume, (9¾ x 12½ inches,) bound in French morocco, levant and sealskin. They have published the Concordance edition, containing the bourgeois type Bible, with references and the combined concordance prepared specially for the wording of the American Standard edition, and twelve maps, with an index to every place mentioned on the maps.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY announce the publication this month of "The Burden of the City," by Miss Isabelle Horton. This is the second book in the series that is being used by almost every Woman's Home Mission organization in the United States, the first being "Under Our Flag," by Miss Guernsey. The present volume takes up the problems of reaching the unchurched in American cities, settlement work, the deaconess movement, children's work, co-operative institutions, etc. The author has had a wide experience as a worker along these lines, and is a practised and delightful writer.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have just brought out an important work on "Historic Dress in America from 1607-1800," by Elisabeth McClellan. The volume, which is richly illustrated in color, pen-and-ink and half-tone, by Sophie B. Steel, of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, and reproductions from photographs of rare portraits, original garments, etc., treats the subject, practically and historically, in a readable form, full of anecdotes, quotations, etc. In an introductory chapter the subject of the dress in the Spanish and French settlements in Florida and Louisiana is discussed. As a specimen of beautiful typographic art, the book takes high rank.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just published a clever little novel entitled "The Girl and the Kaiser," by Pauline Bradford Mackie, in which is shown how the innocence and freshness of an American girl got the better of the German emperor. They have also just brought out a book entitled "Life in Sing Sing," by Number 1500. It is described as an authentic record of his six years' imprisonment, written by the founder and first editor of The Star of Hope, the periodical published by the convicts. They will publish on the 5th inst. an entirely new book by James Whitcomb Riley, entitled "A Defective Santa Claus." The volume, which is a continuous narrative in verse, rather than a poem, is in Riley's happiest vein, and will no doubt win the hearts of his readers. It is illustrated by Will Vawter and C. M. Relyea, and handsomely bound.

Founded on facts gathered from historical records, traditions and contemporaneous accounts, Dr. Hillis has woven this romance around the character of John Chapman. "Johnny Applesud," as he was called, first appeared on the Ohio in 1790, drifting down the river in a boat filled with fruit seeds, landing at intervals to plant orchards in advance of the coming of the settlers. For many years he followed his solitary self-appointed task, introducing fruit trees into Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois and other Middle West states. A thread of love story runs through this tale of heroic self-sacrifice, and there are excellent descriptions of pioneer life.

The story of a fine family, in which are five sisters, of whom one is regarded as hopelessly deformed. Through a loving friend's gift of "Science and Health" and kindly instruction, a wonderful change occurs, which brings joy to the household. The title will be recognized as appropriately taken from the words of the Saviour in healing the daughter of Jairus.

The main objects of this volume are: To define poverty and to estimate its extent at the present time in the United States; to describe some of its evils, not only among the dependent and vicious classes, which constitute the social wreckage in the abysses of our cities, but also among the unskilled, underpaid, underfed, and poorly housed workers; furthermore, to point out certain remedial actions which society may wisely undertake; and finally, to show that the evils of poverty are not barren but procreative, and that the workers in poverty are, in spite of themselves, giving to the world a litter of miseries, whose degeneracy is so stubborn and fixed that reclamation is almost impossible. . . . —Preface.

Charles de Langlade, born in 1729 at Old Mackinaw in northern Michigan, was a brave soldier and sturdy pioneer, a matchless leader of Indian bands, loved and trusted and respected by the savages who hailed him as "The Bravest of the Brave." Settling with his father at the town now known as Green Bay, he became the founder of Wisconsin. He led the Northwest tribes to the defence of Duquesne when Braddock was killed, and he fought with Montcalm's forces against the English, and later commanded his Indians in their attack on St. Louis. This is the man whose life story is told by Mr. Lawson against the historical background of colonial days.

With considerable literary skill, avoiding an hysterical or morbid tone, he discusses the different aspects of prison existence—its diet and discipline, prison labor, escapes, government, the reformation of prisoners, studies of criminal life, etc., in a most informing and practical manner, giving praise as well as blame, and suggestions for bettering existing conditions.

Two articles published in the Century in 1901 and 1902 containing accounts of Thackeray's two tours in the United States have attracted to their author a vast amount of correspondence and reminiscences concerning Thackeray. "The purpose is to trace the growth of the idea of the spirit of God down to the time of the close of the New Testament literature. With the farther growth of the idea, with the interpretation of its biblical meaning which the church has made and the expression of that interpretation in credal statements, the author is not now concerned.
The problem of the book is not, What is the spirit of God? It is rather What was the spirit of God supposed to be at each stage of its biblical development? The problem considered is historical, not speculative."—Preface.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. are preparing for early spring publication a "Bibliography of Hawthorne." It will be of great service, alike to the book collectors and to the students of Hawthorne's life and writings. The work has been done by Miss Nina E. Browne of the Boston Athenæum, who has been engaged upon it for many years. It will contain, so far as it can possibly be discovered, a reference to everything in print either by or about Hawthorne. The classification and arrangement are being carefully considered with a view to making the book as workable as possible, and there will be a double entry magazine index which is likely to prove especially serviceable.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT AND MR. HOWELLS'S COMMENTS.

CONCERNING Mr. Howells's apologetic impeachment, in the "Editor's Easy Chair" of the Christmas Number of Harper's Magazine, of the results of international copyright, it is scarcely too much to say that his conclusions are as wrong as his premises, and his premises as wrong as his facts. His argument, indeed, is a striking example of that most common of fallacies in logic, post hoc, propter hoc—so far as his statement of the present status is to be accepted as fact quite apart from any question of causes. The first fact which Mr. Howells misstates, by inference, concerns the position of the American author in England. That has not been affected in the slightest by our international copyright provision nor, indeed, is it a whit different from what it was a generation ago. American literature had then, so to speak, been discovered in England, but the American author had not discovered the fact that he could obtain English copyright by providing for simultaneous publication in England, and by a deposit of copies as provided by English law. When Dr. Holmes's works, Mr. Howells's earlier volumes, and other delightful American books, were presented to the English public in the dainty cheap editions of David Douglas, of Edinburgh, Mr. Howells himself had exactly the same status under English law that he has to-day. There was, however, an impression that residence on British soil, as in Canada, at the time of publication was necessary, and there was some doubt as to the law, which was finally resolved without change in the law by official statement from the English law authorities.

When English publishers and American authors awoke to the fact that the English law gave adequate protection, and that there was a real market in England for American books, they presently availed themselves of the law, and the American author enjoyed in England the protection which he has to-day; therefore, there is absolutely no foundation for the assumption that the position of American authors in England has been changed by our copyright law, and indeed, substantially, by any modifications in copyright law within the last thirty years or more. Of course, it goes without saying that the change from the old three-volume-30s. system of publishing novels in England to the present 6s.-one-volume form has also nothing to do with international copyright, and if Mr. Howells is right in his statement that English novels have no larger circulation now than under the old system, which statement we think is also mistaken, it has nothing whatever to do with legislation; moreover, it was only the initial editions of English novels that were published at that price—a cheaper edition in the case of really salable novels usually following in a year or so.

As respects American authors in their home country, the sales of American books have undoubtedly been increased under the international copyright provision. The historical novel which has been pushed to the verge by the effective advertising of enterprising publishers since the international copyright provision, particularly excites Mr. Howells's ire and satire. Certainly, it does not represent the standard of literature which Mr. Howells has himself set in his own writings, nor can it be expected to have the permanence which many of his delightful books should have. But this does not, to our mind, represent a deterioration in the taste of the American reading public so much as it represents a dearth of greater authors. It is notorious in the history of literature, from Shakespeare down, that the highest literary work has not resulted from pecuniary encouragement. Neither America nor England has within the last half generation, at least, produced really great new writers. Whether potential Miltons have been made mute and inglorious, because the rewards of the more strenuous life have diverted them from literature, is a problem on which we will not "hazard a wide solution." The extraordinary literary vigor of the extraordinary Lawson articles in Everybody's Magazine suggests that perhaps latter-day Carlyles have taken to "promoting" and stock-jobbing in place of literature.

The result of international copyright in America has been that American authors have been better paid; but it is not claimed, and, we think, was never claimed, that it would produce better authors. These are "born not made." Mr. Howells's contention seems to have but one possible leg to stand on—his claim that American readers have suffered by the repression or exclusion of good English books, or that the vogue of good English books in America has suffered because of increased price. And this is, at most, only a half-fact. Frankly, we should say that the publication of recent biographies—as those of Huxley, Gladstone, Spencer, et al., gives Mr. Howells his one foundation; in fact, these books have been published in expensive shape, and it is to our regret that American publishers have not adopted for them the old form of a book at a popular price for popular circulation. It seems to us that it is the "manufacturing clause," rather than international copyright, which has stood chiefly in the way of cheaper editions of English books, and this being said, all is said. Publishers have been required to make books dearer because of the necessity of setting type over again in this country; and where this has not been done the international copyright provision has been inoperative, and as such books can be pirated as freely as ever, Mr. Howells has no basis of fact for his contention.

Mr. Howells, it seems to us, is equally far afield in his incidental reference to the growth of public libraries and to the net price system. He has written, without looking first for his facts, a pleasantly amusing, but unhappily retrogressive, article, which may have great and unfortunate influence. Have American readers been harmfully restricted; has American literature been discouraged; have American authors suffered by international copyright—or is the contrary the case? These are questions of fact which will doubtless be brought out in the answers to Mr. Howells's article, which are already beginning to appear, as in the important contributions already made by such publishers as Mr. George Haven Putnam and Mr. George E. Brett in the columns of the Evening Post. We have no fear but that a full discussion of the facts will lead to the strengthening instead of to the weakening of the international copyright provision.

THE most obvious weakness, practically and morally, of the international copyright provision is its injustice toward authors in languages other than English. The amendment proposed by the American Publishers' Copyright League to cover this defect is again before Congress, and it has now the negative sanction of the American Authors' Copyright League as at least better than the present provision or lack of provision. The authors and publishers of France, Germany and elsewhere feel rightly aggrieved by the present provision as to translations, and this feeling is so strong as to lead to possible rupture between their countries and our own in the matter of protection of literary property. We trust this danger may be avoided and better justice secured by the prompt passage of the pending amendment.

THE booktrade, during the past week, has sustained a heavy loss in the passing away of General A. C. Barnes, Henry Shaw Baker, and Colonel John H. Ammon. These three men in their day, each in his own field, exerted a great influence for good in the publishing, retailing and distributing the best products of the American mind. Inured from boyhood to hard and conscientious work, each worked his way up to the very top round—an inspiration and stimulus to like effort in others. And while they devoted the best of their talent to the trade which they honored and which honored them, they likewise, in the hour of its need, loyally served their country. All honor to those who have borne their part faithfully in service—whether on the field of war, or in the more peaceful, yet equally worthy, endeavor to develop and dignify a profession.

THE "SIMPLE LIFE" PIRATED.

AN unfortunate incident connected with the lecture tour of Charles Wagner in America has been the putting on the market of a pirated edition of his famous book, "The Simple Life." McClure, Phillips & Co., Mr. Wagner's American publishers, have paid him a royalty for the use of their translation of his work. Mr. Wagner's coming to America naturally increased the demand for his books and a cheap edition of a garbled translation was put upon the market. This situation bears especially hard upon Mr. Wagner personally, and also from the point of view of the success of his trip here in America. Mr. Wagner lives, as would naturally be expected, with extreme simplicity. All that he earns, beyond his nominal salary, he devotes to the furtherance of his work, the spread of the principles of the simple life. One of the reasons for his coming to America was that he hoped by his lecture tour here to make enough to start the building of a church in Paris, where the simple life could be preached. His lecture tour has been a tremendous success, but the increased returns naturally to be expected from the sale of his books will not materialize if the piracy of "The Simple Life" is successful.

COPYRIGHT IN PICTURES.

THE United States Court of Appeals at New York City has rendered a decision of importance to artists and publishers with reference to copyright protection of pictures in this country. Suit was brought in the United States Circuit Court by Emil Werckmeister, proprietor of the Berlin Photographic Company, against the American Lithographic Company and the American Tobacco Company, to prevent the publication as advertisements of cheap and garbled copies of a picture entitled "Chorus," painted by Sadler, an English artist, who had sold the copyright to the Berlin Photographic Company. The defence was that the original picture had been exhibited by the artist at the Royal Academy in London, without attaching a notice of copyright thereon, as required by the United States statute. This defence was sustained by the Circuit Court. The decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals, now rendered, reverses that judgment, and sustains the validity of the copyright. After an elaborate review of the decisions, which goes back as far as the year 1469, when the Senate of the Republic of Venice granted an exclusive privilege of printing, the court comes to the conclusion that the questions presented have not been directly decided in the case of paintings, but that in the analogy of copyright in books, lectures and dramatic compositions the defence was without foundation, and that such an exhibition is not publication as contemplated by the statute. The decision is of practical importance, because it was hitherto believed that, under a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals rendered in Massachusetts, the exhibition of a picture without a notice printed thereon at a public gallery destroyed the validity of the copyright.

THE PROBLEM OF PUBLISHING.

THE anonymous writer who contributes the "Publisher's Confession" to the Boston Transcript, in his fifth confession, (printed in the Transcript for November 9,) discusses the question of "has the unknown author a chance," and answers it by describing the pains a publisher takes to give the unknown author a chance. In closing he touches upon the problem of publishing as follows:

"As a theoretical proposition it seems plain that the publisher who will spend the most money in newspaper advertising will sell the most books. Authors not infrequently take up this notion. Sometimes it is true; for sometimes newspaper advertising will cause a great demand for a book. But this is not true with every book. And most recent publishing failures have been due—in a great measure, at least—to prodigal advertising—or, perhaps, to misdirected advertising.

"Every book is a problem unto itself. The wise publisher so regards it from the beginning; and he makes his plans for every book to suit its peculiar case and not another. All the long road from author to reader the book—any book—presents a series of interesting original problems. Many of them are very fascinating problems. They call for imagination, fertility, ingenuity. The reason why few authors or authors' societies or other persons who have not been definitely trained to publishing fail, is that they are too likely to regard publishing as a mere routine business—a business of manufacturing a certain product and then of offering it for sale. They forget that every book—and even every edition of every book—presents a problem that was never presented before since the world was made. And when its sympathetic ingenuity and inventiveness fail, a publishing house begins to become a mere business and the drying-up period is not far off.

"But no publishing house fails because it does not examine manuscripts carefully. There is no other business that I know of that is done more seriously; and the mistakes made are fewer than the public thinks. They are the mistakes of judgment and not of carelessness."

THE BOOKSTORE AS AN AGENT OF CIVILIZATION.

GEORGE KENNAN in The Outlook for October 29, in discussing the question which he would choose if the whole world had to come under either Russian domination or Japanese domination, inclined to rule by the Japanese, provided it were a question between the world-domination by the present Russian government and world-domination by the existing Japanese government. In reaching this conclusion, Mr. Kennan takes into consideration mental and moral culture; enlightenment and toleration in religious faith; a general respect for and observance of law, however enacted; a judicial system that gives legal security to person and property without class distinction; individual freedom to think, choose and act within wide limits of law and in all fields of human activity; a certain level of individual and national integrity and a certain degree of individual and national development in the personal virtues that may be described as the characteristics of a gentleman. It is significant that under the first head—mental and moral education—Mr. Kennan says that "one of the first things that strike the attentive newcomer in Japan is the great number of external evidences of widely diffused education. In Tokyo, for example, there is a bookstore on almost every block, not only in the parts of the city inhabited by the higher social classes, but in the quarters and districts tenanted almost exclusively by poor shopkeepers, artisans, and day laborers. Since I took up my residence in the capital, I have ridden hundreds of miles through its universally clean streets, from Ueno Park to Shinagawa, and from the Botanical Garden to the river, and I think I am well within the limit of moderation when I say that there are ten bookstores in Tokyo for every one that can be found in St. Petersburg. School children, of both sexes, are quite as much in evidence as bookstores; and at certain hours of the day one cannot ride or walk three blocks in any part of the city without meeting boys in the visored caps and girls in the maroon-colored Occidental skirts of the Japanese student world; while on holidays long processions of younger children from the primary schools march through the streets, singing as they go, on their way to some excursion suburb or picnic ground. If one had no other material for the formation of a judgment than that afforded by the bookstores and school children of Tokyo and St. Petersburg, one would naturally and inevitably conclude that, in educational facilities at least, Japan is far in advance of Russia."

Judged by this standard, what a figure will the United States cut with its two or three thousand bookstores to a population of over seventy million souls!

HENRY T. COATES & CO. SELL OUT TO THE WINSTON COMPANY.

As was expected for some time, the well-known firm of Henry T. Coates & Co., of Philadelphia, has closed up and retired from the publishing field. The John C. Winston Company, which has gradually but steadily developed into one of the most important manufacturing publishing concerns in the country, has purchased the entire stock of Henry T. Coates & Co., including the plates and copyrights of over one thousand volumes of standard works. The magazine, House and Garden, is also included in the transfer. Mr. Coates will become a stockholder of the Winston Company and go upon its Board of Managers, where his long experience and his literary taste will be much appreciated. Mr. Coates's only object in selling his business is to secure more leisure in his advancing years.

The firm of Henry T. Coates & Co. had its beginning in the firm of Davis & Porter, formed about 1848 by Robert Porter and Charles H. Davis. In February, 1866, Mr. Henry T. Coates entered the firm, which then took the name of Davis, Porter & Coates. In 1867 Mr. Davis retired and the firm became Porter & Coates, which enjoyed a splendid reputation as dealers in rare books and art works, as well as publishers of popular books. In 1869 the late Mr. G. Morrison Coates entered the firm as senior partner. In July, 1895, Mr. Porter retired and the firm then became Henry T. Coates & Co. A few years ago they closed out their large retail business and a year ago their stationery business was taken over by George W. Jacobs & Co. Mr. Coates has long chafed under the restraint of the business, and the closing out of the business therefore does not come as a surprise.

The John C. Winston Company was established by John C. Winston in 1884 to manufacture photographic albums and to publish subscription books. By degrees the business developed on the publishing side as well as on the manufacturing side, and a large list accumulated of popular and juvenile literature. In 1892 the firm, which was incorporated as the John C. Winston Company—of which John C. Winston is president, William Ellis Scull, vice-president, Isaac T. Johnson, treasurer, and Charles F. Kindt, secretary—bought out the plant of the International Bible Agency, which placed them in the front rank of the Bible manufacturers in this country. In April of this year the firm took possession of their handsome new eight-story building on Arch Street, above Tenth, on the site of the old Arch Street Presbyterian Church, with a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 150 feet, giving them a floor space of about 135,000 square feet, or about three acres. With the acquisition of the publishing plant of Henry T. Coates & Co. the Winston Company will be fully equipped to become an important factor in the publishing trade.

CRANE OUT OF PAPER MILLS.

PAPERS have been filed in Pittsfield, Mass., by which Senator W. Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, has transferred his interest in the Government paper mills in Pittsfield to his son, W. M. Crane, Jr.

Senator Crane has long been the head of the firm of Crane & Co., paper makers, with large plants in Dalton and Pittsfield. For twenty years they have made the bank note and bond paper used by the United States Government. As no member of Congress can enter into a contract with the Government the transfer has been made before the Senator takes the oath of office in Washington on December 5.

HIGH PRICES FOR AMERICANA.

SOME high prices were obtained on the evening of November 28 for rare volumes of Americana at the opening sale of the second portion of the library of the late Bishop John F. Hurst, at Anderson's auction rooms in New York City.

The prize of the collection, a splendid copy of Cotton Mather's "Magnalia Christi Americana," sold for $345, and was bought by George D. Smith, of New York. This volume is said to be the largest and most perfect copy of this rare publication in existence. It was printed in London in 1702, and has been elaborately bound in full morocco. This copy was formerly in the libraries of William Menzies and Brayton Ives.

Another of the rarest of the Mather publications, Cotton Mather's discourse on the "Present State of New England," touching upon the French and Indian war and printed in Boston in 1690, was bought by Dodd, Mead & Co. for $290, the second highest price of the sale. The first book printed in Boston, Increase Mather's sermon, entitled "The Wicked Man's Portion," and printed by John Foster in Boston, 1675, sold for $250. The Brinley copy in 1879 brought $140, and this copy from Bishop Hurst's library is the first to be sold at auction since that time.

Cotton Mather's discourse, "Soldiers Counseled and Comforted," printed in Boston in 1689 by Samuel Green, was sold for $245. This was Thomas Pince's original copy, and his autograph appears three times in the book. Samuel Mather's "Testimony from Scripture Against Idolatry and Superstition," printed in 1663 and bound in a volume with two other old pamphlets, the book having once belonged to Ezra Stiles and bearing his autograph with the date, 1760, brought $140. Increase Mather's "Blessed Hope," printed in Boston, 1701, sold for $135, and an "Essay upon the Good," by Cotton Mather, printed in Boston, 1710, brought $105.

A Rhode Island almanac, printed in Newport, 1741, by the widow Franklin, sold for $18.

For the New England Primers the highest price paid was $115 for an improved primer printed for John Perkins, of Boston, in 1771, with a portrait of George III. preceding the title. An enlarged primer printed by T. & J. Fleet in 1763 brought $80. The total brought by the eighty primers was $859.40. Bishop Hurst's collection was the largest ever sold. The chief bidders were the Boston Public Library, the Congressional Library and Dodd, Mead & Co.

At the second day's sale a fine copy of the Mohawk Prayer Book, 1715, was sold for $1300. A fine copy of the second edition of Eliot's Indian Bible brought $410.

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE.

THE annual meeting of the Stationers' Board of Trade will be held on January 3, 1905. The nominating committee for trustees for the ensuing year selected the same ticket as last year with the exception of Robert Dickson, of D. Appleton & Co., in whose place Eberhardt Faber has been chosen.

The annual dinner will be given next year on February 7, in the Myrtle Room of the Waldorf-Astoria. The following have been appointed the dinner committee: James C. Aikin, of Aikin, Lambert & Co.; Robert Ansley, of American News Co.; Lyman B. Sturgis, of The Macmillan Co.; Eberhardt Faber, of Eberhardt Faber; Wm. B. Boorum, Jr., of Boorum & Pease Co.; W. C. Horn, of Wm. C. Horn Bro. & Co., and the president ex-officio.

NEW YORK STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

In response to circulars sent out by the Stationers' Board of Trade to the retail stationers of Greater New York, less than a dozen representatives of the retail trade attended the meeting held at the rooms of the Stationers' Board at 99 Nassau Street, New York, on November 22, to consider the advisability of forming a local stationers' association on the lines of those already flourishing in Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and other cities. A committee, consisting of Andrew Geyer, Harry Haupt and Eben Storer, was appointed to arrange for another meeting of a more social nature, to be held in the near future, when it is hoped the attendance will be large enough to warrant the formation of an association.

CORRECTION IN TRADE LIST ANNUAL INDEX.

USERS of the Publishers' Trade List Annual for 1902 will please note that Franz S. Meyer's "Handbook of Ornament," (page 652,) is published by Hessling, not by Lane.

NEWSDEALERS' BALL.

THE Wholesale Newsdealers' Employees of New York and Brooklyn gave their third annual ball on the evening of November 29, at Arion Hall, in Brooklyn. Like their previous affairs, it was a success. The several hundred members, with their wives and fair friends, filled the hall, which was made gay with bunting and flags. The merry-makers assembled early, and by eleven o'clock the affair was in full swing, and it was nearly daylight before thought was given to business.

The dancing was directed by John McCauley, who acted as floor manager, and was assisted by Fred Williams and Edward Walsh.

The officers of the organization are: John Keogh, president; Samuel Sotland, vice-president; Edward Wilson, second vice-president; Jake Dulan, third vice-president; John Higney, fourth vice-president; Fred DeCarte, treasurer; Phil Schuck, financial secretary; George Stewart, chairman of the arrangements committee; Otto Hildenbrand, recording secretary; Nathan Weil, corresponding secretary; Dick Richards, sergeant-at-arms; Neil Delaney, assistant sergeant-at-arms.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

LOUIS TRACY, author of "The Wings of the Morning" and "The Pillar of Light," has gone to Nice for the winter, from where he writes his American publisher, E. J. Clode, that he is busily engaged in rounding into shape his new novel, "The Garden of Hearts' Delight." The scene of the story is laid in India, being written round what are possibly the most romantic incidents in the history of that country, the lives of Akbar, Emperor of India, and the beautiful, gracious and world-renowned Empress, Nuir Mahal. Few authors know their India better than Mr. Tracy, as he spent many years there while engaged in journalistic work.

THE name Irwin has become rather prominent in literature the last few years, and has been particularly identified with literature's humors. There are two W. Irwins, both hailing from San Francisco, and both at the present moment resident in New York. They are relatives; in fact, no further distant than brothers. Will Irwin is responsible for a large share of the humor in "The Picaroons" and "The Reign of Queen Isyl," which he wrote in collaboration with Gelett Burgess. Wallace Irwin's genius has taken a lyric turn, and he made his bow before the public with a series of sonnets, "The Love Sonnets of a Hoodlum," and is responsible for "Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, Jr.," "The Nautical Lays of a Landsman," etc.

PERSONAL NOTES.

W. H. PARKER, for a number of years with E. P. Dutton & Co., has taken a position in the retail department of Charles Scribner's Sons.

JOHN A. HOLDEN, for upwards of twenty years with Thomas Whittaker, and recently of the Holden Art Company, has been appointed business manager of the office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, succeeding W. J. Bell.

OBITUARY.

JAMES SHAW BAKER.

JAMES SHAW BAKER, the senior member of the Baker & Taylor Company, died at his home in East Orange, N. J., on November 19. Mr. Baker was born in Pompey, Onondaga County, N. Y., November 7, 1836, and was graduated from Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y. He came to New York City on September 1, 1857, and studied law in the office of Lucien Birdseye until the spring of 1859, when he entered the publishing house of Blakeman & Mason. At the outbreak of the war between the States, Mr. Baker, in April, 1861, enlisted in the Thirteenth Regiment of the New York National Guard and served with it in Maryland until August, 1861, at which time its term of field service under the call of President Lincoln expired. He retained his connection with this regiment during the next eight years. After the return of the regiment to Brooklyn, Mr. Baker was commissioned to recruit a company for a regiment then organizing, but relinquished that work upon receiving an offer of appointment on the staff of Major-General O. M. Mitchell at Charleston, S. C. The sudden death of General Mitchell from yellow fever brought an end to Mr. Baker's military service. In September, 1861, he was appointed Transfer Agent of the Lacrosse and Milwaukee Railroad at New York City, which position he held until February, 1862, when he again joined the firm of Blakeman & Mason, which afterwards became Oakley, Mason & Co., with James S. Oakley, Albert Mason, James S. Baker, Elihu Phinny, Ormsby M. Mitchell and William T. Pratt as partners. This firm, in turn, in 1872, was succeeded by Mason, Baker & Pratt, when Mr. Oakley retired, and Auburn H. Krum was admitted to partnership. In 1874 this firm was dissolved, Mr. Mason taking over the publishing business and Baker, Pratt & Co. continuing the jobbing of books and stationery. They became agents for a number of out-of-town publishers and also engaged in importing foreign books and stationery. Up to 1878 they remained at 142 and 144 Grand Street and then removed to No. 19 Bond Street. In 1885, the partnership of Baker, Pratt & Co. having expired by limitation, Mr. Baker and Nelson Taylor, Jr., of South Norwalk, Conn., formed the firm of Baker & Taylor, and established themselves at No. 9 Bond Street, as jobbers of books. William T. Pratt, Charles D. Pratt and Robert L. Boyd, under the firm name of W. T. Pratt & Co., continued the fancy goods and stationery business of the old firm at No. 19 Bond Street, A. H. Andrews & Co. taking over the school furniture department, James H. Blauvelt, the special member of the firm, retiring altogether. In 1888 Baker & Taylor removed to 740 Broadway; in February, 1894, they went to 5 East Sixteenth Street, and in 1901, having before this been incorporated as the Baker & Taylor Company, and absorbed the business of Charles T. Dillingham & Co., they removed to their present quarters in North Union Square.

JAMES SHAW BAKER.

The firm, in direct line, may trace its descent back to 1830, when its foundations were laid in Hartford, Conn., by David F. Robinson and B. B. Barber, who established a bindery and later published historical and subscription books. In time they drifted into the jobbing business, becoming the Eastern agents of Harper & Brothers, Lea & Blanchard, Carey & Hart and others. In 1834 the firm removed to New York City, settling at 259 Pearl Street, and by admitting Henry Z. Pratt and O. P. Woodford became the firm of Robinson, Pratt & Co. Absorbing the jobbing business of H. & J. White they removed to 63 Wall Street, where they remained four or five years, and then selling out their lease to the Seamen's Savings Bank, returned to Pearl Street near Wall Street. In 1843, Mr. Robinson was elected president of the Hartford Bank and retired from the firm, which then became Pratt, Woodford & Co., the junior member being E. P. Farmer. In 1848 they removed to Cortlandt Street, then way uptown. In 1857 the firm became T. K. Brace & Co.; later it was changed to Farmer, Brace & Co., and then to Pratt, Oakley & Co., who established themselves at 21 Murray Street. When the war broke out, the firm, whose main business was with the South, went into liquidation. Subsequently Blakeman & Mason resuscitated the business and since that time the firm in one shape or another, as above outlined, has continued actively in business.

For upwards of forty years Mr. Baker was the mainspring of the book jobbing department of the business, a task for which, by learning, temperament and experience he was peculiarly fitted. The organization of this branch of the Baker & Taylor Company was as nearly perfect as human ingenuity could make it, permitting of intelligent and prompt service. In every direction conscientiousness was evident in Mr. Baker's administration, his aim being to supply every want of his constituency complete, promptly and at the lowest possible price.

Personally, Mr. Baker was a man of average height and spare build, keen-eyed and quiet in manner. Though of almost an austere exterior he was nevertheless easily approached and kindly and courteous in manner. Unostentatiously he performed many acts of friendship and charity and in return was respected and honored by his colleagues. As a mark of their esteem the Booksellers' League, on March 12, 1902, gave a complimentary dinner in his honor and invited a number of their principals to make addresses on this occasion.

His public life was connected almost entirely with work in the Brick Presbyterian Church at East Orange, N. J., where he resided since 1872. For more than thirty years he was an elder in the church, and for fifteen years the superintendent of the Sunday-school. He was twice a commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, and for several years a member of the Board of Managers of the American Bible Society. He was also a member of the Aldine Association.

He married Miss Eleanor Stout Smith of Brooklyn, N. Y., October 6, 1863, who with a son, Herbert S. Baker, the vice-president of the Baker & Taylor Company, survive him.

A special meeting of the American Publishers' Association was held at the Aldine rooms, New York City, at 4 o'clock on Monday, November 21, in memory of Mr. Baker, and was attended by representatives of the leading publishing houses of New York City. Mr. Frank H. Scott, president of the association, spoke warmly of the high esteem in which Mr. Baker had been held by those who knew him, and tributes of affection and respect were paid by many of those present.

Mr. Frank H. Dodd said: "His most prominent characteristic was a sturdy integrity. I never knew a man more honest and upright in all his business relations. He was positive in his views, yet always kind and considerate and always absolutely sincere—qualities that entitle his memory to our great esteem and affection. He should be remembered also as a competent man in all relations of his business; a thoroughly good bookseller, identified with all the best traditions of the trade. It has been a long and most honorable life he has led among us."

Mr. Stephen Farrelly said: "Mr. Baker always lived up to every promise made. In the early days there was more competition and struggling in the trade than now, but we never knew any underhanded dealing from Mr. Baker. It is a pleasure to do business with honorable competitors, and when the ranks are thinned it is a loss not easily repaired. It will certainly be a great honor to the younger men in the trade if they leave the same good record behind."

Mr. Charles Wiley, who had long been a member of the same church with Mr. Baker, told of the latter's unvarying generosity in matters connected with the church.

Mr. Adam W. Wagnalls, of the Funk & Wagnalls Co., said: "There is a charm about the name of the Baker & Taylor Company. I should be sorry to see it effaced; but we can keep it in our memory. Mr. Baker's life teaches the value of character above everything else; may we take the lesson to heart, to build up a character as strong as his."

Mr. Charles Scribner, Mr. Cook, of G. W. Dillingham Co., and Mr. Frank N. Doubleday also spoke in the highest terms of Mr. Baker's sterling qualities, and the following resolutions, offered by Mr. Frederick A. Stokes, were passed:

Resolved, That in the death of James Shaw Baker, President of The Baker & Taylor Company, American publishers and booksellers, and the business community in general, have suffered a heavy loss. His unusually high character and great ability gained for him the respect and admiration of all those with whom he held business relations during an honorable and successful career of nearly half a century, while his kindness toward, and consideration for, others endeared him to all who were so fortunate as to know him.

Resolved, That the American Publishers' Association mourns his loss as that of an important member in sympathy with the beneficent objects of the Association, and as one who constantly rendered valuable and intelligent aid to the officers and members of the Association and to the book trade of the country.

Resolved, That we give our deep sympathy to his family and his business associates in their great affliction.

Resolved, That these Resolutions be entered in the records of this Association and be sent to the Press, and that they may be engrossed and sent to his family and his business associates.

Resolved, That the officers of this Association attend the funeral services to be held at Brick Church, New Jersey, on Tuesday morning, November 22, 1904, at half-past ten o'clock.

FRANK H. SCOTT, President.
FREDERICK A. STOKES, Secretary.

ALFRED CUTLER BARNES.

GENERAL ALFRED CUTLER BARNES, vice-president of the American Book Company, died suddenly of pneumonia on the morning of November 28, at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y. General Barnes was the oldest son of A. S. Barnes, of the old firm of A. S. Barnes & Co., to the management of which he succeeded after the death of his father in February, 1888. General Barnes was born on October 27, 1842, at Philadelphia, to which city his father, who had been raised in the school-book publishing house of D. F. Robinson & Co., at Hartford, and later in New York, removed in 1840, being then in partnership with Professor Charles Davies as publisher of school and text-books. In 1845 A. S. Barnes, recognizing that New York offered superior advantages for his prosperous and increasing trade, removed to this city, establishing himself at the corner of John and Dutch Streets. His oldest son, the subject of this sketch, was educated in private schools in Brooklyn, being one of the first students of the Polytechnic and Collegiate Institute when it was first opened in 1855. After completing his preparation for Yale, he filled up the summer vacation in his father's store, and became so enamored with the business that he gave up his collegiate career. Donning a linen duster, then the badge of a book clerk, he took a minor position and worked his way up from the mailing desk to the head of the jobbing department.

In 1860 he enlisted in Company C of the Seventh Regiment N. G. S. N. Y., and shortly after went to the front with this regiment at the breaking out of the war between the States. In 1862, on the return of the Seventh, General Barnes was transferred to Company

G of the Twenty-third Regiment, with which he saw service in the field when it was sent into Pennsylvania in the Gettysburg days. In 1867, with the rank of lieutenant, he retired from the National Guard and was not again connected with it until 1876, when he was made major in the Twenty-third. In 1884 he was elected colonel, and served two years. During this time he held the rank of brevet brigadier-general, the only instance of the kind in the history of the regiment that an officer became a colonel after holding a higher rank.

In 1865 General Barnes was admitted to membership in the firm of A. S. Barnes & Co., which, with his four brothers, he managed after his father's death until April, 1890, when their school book department was absorbed by the American Book Company, of which General Barnes became vice-president, a position he held until his death.

General Barnes in connection with his father's firm paid special attention to its literary affairs, and for a number of years edited their Educational Bulletin. He was largely instrumental in getting up "Barnes's Brief History of the United States," and several other successful educational books. In the Central Booksellers' Association and in the early American Publishers' Association General Barnes took a leading part.

General Barnes founded the Astor Place Bank, in New York City, and became its president. He was a director of the Brooklyn Library for several years and was its president for several terms. He was a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, a trustee of Adelphi College, Brooklyn, of Cornell University, and of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. In 1879 he was appointed a trustee of the Brooklyn Bridge, and continued as such until the completed bridge was turned over to the city. He was a member of clubs in both Brooklyn and New York City, and was president of the Aldine Association at the time of his death.

At a special meeting of the board of trustees of the Brooklyn Public Library, held at the board rooms, 26 Brevoort Place, Brooklyn, on November 29, to take action upon the death of General Barnes, who was a member of the board, President Booty spoke as follows: "There are few men in our community whose death could produce so great a shock as the death of General Barnes. There are few men whose departure would be so sincerely mourned. He had long been identified with the life of our city. He had been intimately connected with our best institutions. As a business man his name was known throughout Greater New York and honored by all; as a citizen his standards were always high; as an acquaintance it was a privilege to know him; as a friend it was an irreparable loss to lose him."

Resolutions were passed by the Aldine Association and several other organizations of which General Barnes was a member.

The funeral services were held in the First Presbyterian Church, at Henry, near Clark Street, Brooklyn, in the afternoon of November 30. The interment was in Greenwood.

JOHN H. AMMON.

COLONEL JOHN H. AMMON, of the firm of Ammon & Mackel, successors to Leggat Brothers, died after a long illness, on November 28, at his residence, 310 West Ninety-seventh Street, New York. Colonel Ammon, one of the most popular men in the trade, was born at Auburn, N. Y., February 29, 1840. After completing his studies he commenced business in the Ivison bookstore, in 1854, and remained there until the death of John C. Ivison. After this he was connected with Ivison & Phinney, publishers and jobbers, at 521 Broadway, in New York City. Next he was with John M. Cooper & Co., publishers and booksellers, Savannah, Ga., and from there he went into the employ of Phillips & Sampson, Boston. When Phillips, Sampson & Co. failed, Colonel Ammon returned to New York and accepted a position as travelling salesman. In April, 1861, while in Syracuse on a business trip, he heard of the call for volunteers. Leaving his trunk at Syracuse, he journeyed to Auburn and raised a company of men to respond to his country's call. The Colonel had some knowledge of military matters, having been a captain of cadets when a youth, and his efficiency was early recognized. He was made captain in the Nineteenth New York Infantry, and served as such until January, 1862, when he joined the Cobb Light Battery I, Third Artillery. On January 10, 1864, Colonel Ammon was promoted for gallant and meritorious service. In 1865 he connected himself with the house of Ticknor & Fields, and remained through the various changes the firm underwent, i.e., Fields, Osgood & Co., James R. Osgood & Co., and Houghton, Osgood & Co. In 1880 he became partner in the new house of James R. Osgood & Co. He afterwards disposed of his interest to his partners, and in March, 1885, connected himself with Harper & Brothers, where he remained until the reorganization, when he retired for a year. He then connected himself with Adolf Mackel and purchased the business of Leggat Brothers, which they continued under the firm name of Ammon & Mackel. Colonel Ammon was a member of the Lotos and Democratic Clubs, the Papyrus Club, of Boston, Lafayette Post, G. A. R., the Loyal Legion, and the Old Guard of New York.

He came to this country in 1860 and served in the 11th New York Cavalry in the war between the States, retiring with the rank of brevet Brigadier-General. In 1865 President Lincoln appointed him consul at Cyprus, where he made a number of important archaeological discoveries, the results of which are noted in his work on "Cyprus, its ancient cities, tombs and temples." Having sold his collection of antiquities to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, he became director of that institution in 1879, and continued to hold that position up to the time of his death.

MR. BONAVENTURE, of 6 West Thirty-third Street, New York, is giving an exhibition of a special collection of eighteenth century illustrated French books, some of them in embroidered bindings, together with some almanacs of the period, souvenir cases, writing portfolios and silver bindings.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just published a novel entitled "Wanted: a Cook," by "Alan Dale." The title certainly expresses one of the deepest longings of human nature—a longing that grows more intense as civilization (so-called) advances, a longing almost universal and alas! in some cases eternal.

METHUEN & Co., London, have just published a biography of "Hurrell Froude," by Miss Louise Imogen Guiney. The materials have been drawn from hitherto unknown sources. The book is less biographical than critically synthetic; "re-arranged material," as the preface says, "for the study of a temperament."

HENRY W. FISCHER'S "Private Lives of William II. and His Consort" has been brought out in an English edition by William Heinemann, of London, and in a French translation by L'Eclair, of Paris. The work has recently received the "Hall mark" of Elbert Hubbard's approval, who considers that Mr. Fischer has "done a big piece of work—vivid and vital." The work has been confiscated in Germany.

THE CENTURY COMPANY reports that "Italian Villas and Their Gardens," by Mrs. Edith Wharton, with Parrish's pictures, is practically sold out, and a new edition is in preparation, which it is hoped to have on the dealers' counters before their supply of the first edition is entirely exhausted. "The Rose of Old St. Louis" is just going to press for its sixth large printing, and Mr. Roosevelt's "Strenuous Life" for its eleventh.

JAMES POTT & Co. will publish at once "Day Dream and Even Song," Frederick Fairchild Sherman's first book of verse. This volume contains practically all of the poems Mr. Sherman has contributed to the various magazines and literary periodicals during the last twelve years, and includes songs in various measures and in many keys—poems of youth and love, lyrics of nature and of life, and hymns of praise and of thanksgiving.

THE CONSOLIDATED RETAIL BOOKSELLERS, New York, have just published "Toasts for the Times in Pictures and Rhymes," by John William Sargent, pictures by Nella Fontaine Binckley. Mr. Sargent is the treasurer of the Society of American Magicians, and has been a life-long public entertainer and speaker. One of the strong features of his book is the fact that not one of the toasts has ever been in print before. The book is handsomely bound, with gilt top.

THE first book that Mrs. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor will bind in her newly established Rose bindery in Chicago, is to be a copy of Charles E. Russell's new volume of poems—"The Twin Immortalities," just published by the Hammersmark Publishing Company of Chicago. The book is dedicated by permission to Emile Loubet, president of the French republic, as "the foremost democrat of these times," and it is the copy to be presented to President Loubet that Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor will bind, doing the work herself. The cover is to be adorned according to her own design with the arms of France and the United States.

THE COMMONWEALTH COMPANY, New York, will publish on the 10th inst. a new and improved edition of Doane's "Bible Myths, and Their Parallels in Other Religions," in one large octavo volume, with numerous illustrations. This work is a comparison of the Old and New Testament myths and miracles with those of the heathen nations of antiquity, considering their origin and meaning. The book is the result of many years of study of the religions of antiquity, and is, in effect, an encyclopedia of the subjects treated, containing significant quotations from many of the sacred books of heathen nations, and from other rare and valuable works not accessible to most people. Every fact is verified by copious notes and authorities.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. are bringing out a new edition of "Ideals of the East, with Special Reference to the Art of Japan," by Kakasu Okakura. It not only contains much information concerning Buddhistic art, but is an aid to the understanding of Eastern civilization and the Japanese point of view. They announce also a new edition of Professor Edward Dowden's "Life of Robert Browning." The work is not so much a biography as a study of his books, the chief of "his acts and all that he did." Through his poems Professor Dowden traces the development of the poet's mind and art. The book is in the series of Temple Biographies and is illustrated with scenes from Browning's life and works.

T. FISHER UNWIN, London, has opened a "First Novel Competition," and offers a prize of £100 to the author of the best book submitted. Incidentally, he stipulates that the successful novel shall become his "absolute property." According to The London Daily News this proposition, however, is not so bad. "Even those who are accounted successful seldom make, from a first novel, the half of the £100 which Mr. Unwin offers. . . . The winner, who will presumably be a very clever writer, barter the probability of making £30 or £40, plus the remote possibility of making £1000, for the certainty of £100, plus no small credit to his name—an exchange certainly to the advantage of the novelist, as viewed before the event."

BRENTANO'S announce three handbooks for card players by R. F. Foster, the well-known authority on all indoor games, author of twenty-six standard text-books on that subject, and for the past twelve years card editor of the New York Sun. The first, "Practical Poker," is said to be the most complete and exhaustive history of the game and its laws so far written, and sets forth the tactics of the expert in a very simple and comprehensive way. The explanation of the reasons for the laws is from the standard of the professional player. The second book is the latest word on the ever-popular subject of Bridge, a concise little volume entitled "Bridge Maxims," which is built on the principle of many examples and few rules. The third work is a small but complete guide to the new and interesting game of "Call-the-Ace Euchre," which experts declare to be the most amusing game of the century.

AN Oxford edition of Shelley's poems is nearly ready for publication by the Oxford University Press. It will contain material which has never yet been printed; the early poems, first published in Professor Dowden's Life of Shelley but omitted from his edition of the poetical works, and all other poems which have appeared in any previous edition; and the important fragments recovered by C. D. Locock from the Bodeian mss. The volume will be demy 8vo, uniform with Canon Beeching's Oxford Milton, and will consist of about 1000 pages, with three collotype illustrations, one the Bodleian portrait of Shelley, the other two facsimiles of his handwriting. Thomas Hutchinson, editor of the Oxford Wordsworth, has seen the new Shelley through the press, and he has supplied footnotes where the variant readings are important, in addition to a few longer notes and a general preface.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out "The True Henry Clay," a new volume in the True Biographies Series. The volume is by Joseph M. Rogers, who was born and reared in the Clay country, and who has made a study of his subject for many years. Mr. Rogers had access to all the private Clay papers, as well as the assistance of the relatives of the family of the statesman. His book is notable for its portrayal of Clay as a man, and for its wealth of anecdote. It contains twenty-four illustrations, most of them from photographs made especially for this work. The experience of J. B. Lippincott Company with "Kitty of the Roses" would seem to indicate that the generally understood decrease in interest in so-called "Christmas books" has no better foundation than a critical distaste for the more gaudy and less artistic reproductions which once upon a time were classified as "holiday books." Mr. Barbour's little story, which the publishers present with illustrations in color and decorations in tint, has proved an immediate success, from a popular standpoint, and the second large edition of that book has been almost taken up by the advance orders which have accumulated since the book was placed upon the press.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have just brought out their Cornhill edition of the "Complete Works of Thackeray" in thirty octavo volumes. The editors of this edition, William P. Trent, of Columbia University, and John Bell Henneman, of the University of the South, have taken advantage of the large amount of material developed in recent years regarding Thackeray, and have aimed to present a complete definitive text—giving two thousand pages not found in other editions. They have included all of the great novelist's essays, burlesques, Christmas stories, sketches, criticisms of letters and art, quips in Punch, drawings, poems and a new collection of typical personal letters. The editors have contributed special introductions to every volume; notes and critical comment; a complete bibliography based on the chronology of the novelist's life; a biography, and a complete topical index, which gives easy access to everything in the entire set. The features of manufacture keep pace with the merits of the text. The reading page is large, clear and pleasing. Among the three hundred or more illustrations are a fine series of photogravure portraits of the author, many of his own quaint drawings, and other drawings by well-known artists. The paper also is special stock and the bindings rich and durable.

JOHN LANE has just published in a special winter number of The International Studio an account of the work of Daumier and Gavarni, the celebrated French humorous draughtsmen, who are singularly little known, or at least remembered chiefly for what are perhaps their least admirable productions. This fact is all the stranger because both artists can be assigned, without hesitation, places among the most imaginative draughtsmen the world has ever seen, and their talents attained their highest perfection in the middle of the last century only. They were humorists of the first order, sometimes subtle, sometimes grim, and sometimes boisterous. At times each of them threw off his levity and followed more serious themes, in astonishing contrast to the more usual habit of brimming humor. In their technique each of them stands in the first rank of draughtsmanship by the force, flexibility and significance of his lines. The special winter number of The International Studio illustrates every phase of their genius. The large number of illustrations includes upwards of twenty important color-plates and photogravures, and one hundred reproductions of drawings in black-and-white. The artists in most cases drew direct upon the stone, and the facsimile reproductions for this special number have been made from the original impressions, now very scarce. An article on Daumier is contributed by Henri Frantz, and one on Gavarni by Octave Uzanne.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out "The Road in Tuscany," by Maurice Hewlett, in two volumes, with two hundred illustrations by Joseph Pennell; "Thomas Nast: His Period and His Pictures," by Albert Bigelow Paine; "The Christian Opportunity," by Thomas R. Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury; "The Quest of John Chapman: The Story of a Forgotten Hero," a novel by Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis; "The Women of America," by Miss Elizabeth McCracken; "Beethoven and His Forerunners," by Daniel Gregory Mason, the author of "From Grieg to Brahms;" "Pathfinders of the West," by Miss Agnes C. Laut; "Photography for the Sportsman Naturalist," by L. W. Brownell; a new and enlarged edition of Hamilton W. Mabie's "Backgrounds of Literature;" "Europe and the Far East," by Sir Robert K. Douglas; "Sunny Sicily," by Mrs. Alec Tweedie; "The Practice of Self-Culture," by Rev. Hugh Black; "Atoms of Empire," by Cutcliffe Hyne; "The Distribution of Wealth," by Professor Thomas Nixon Carver; "Harvard Lectures on Greek Subjects," by Professor S. A. Butcher, of London; "From the Monarchy to the Republic in France, 1788-1792," by Sophia MacLehose; the new novel by Charles Egbert Craddock, author of "The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountain;" "The Art of Creation: a Series of Essays on the Self and Its Powers," by Edward Carpenter, author of "Towards Democracy;" and Scott's "Talisman," in the Pocket Classics Series. They will publish at once the long-promised "Memorial of Edward Burne-Jones," by "G. B. J.," (Lady Burne-Jones.)

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

ROBERT GRIER COOKE has become the publisher in America of The Burlington Magazine, Limited, of London, which takes its name from the Burlington House, London, the home of eight British societies. The magazine is one of interest to lovers of art. Among those who belong to its editorial staff are Viscount Dillon, Laurence Binyon, Sidney Colvin, Allan Marquand, André Michel, and Charles Eliot Norton. It deals with the different branches of pictorial and plastic arts, fine books, historic furniture, and ceramics.

Country Life in America's Christmas Annual is even larger, with more sumptuously printed color pages and illustrations, this year than last, and it is certainly one of the most striking magazine publications of the month. A leading feature, "Christmas in the Open," by Hamilton Wright Mabie, is illustrated with four frontispieces in color, to show the spirit of Christmas in the North, East, South and West. Other important features include "A Christmas House Party," by Arthur Huntington Gleason, a practically suggestive, as well as delightfully interesting story; "The Joyous Sport of Skate-Sailing," an illustrated account that will win new enthusiasts for this thrilling sport; and "Christmas for the Birds and Animals," by A. Radclyffe Dugmore is the photographically illustrated story of queer little birds and beasts that come to the winter crumb table; while "House Plants for Christmas" suggests beautiful home-grown gifts, and "A Wild Flower in the Snow" is one of the many articles of nature and out-door interest during the winter months. Shorter articles are concerned with advice and things one should consider for the comfort and joy of the holiday season.

GENTLEMEN: Please send me by early mail one-half dozen of the cardboard hangers, entitled "A Prayer," such as published by you some time since. Think the author to be Max Ehrmann, but am not sure. Saw one of them on the walls of a humble home in the Indian Territory and was struck by same, not only by its surroundings, which were poverty stricken, but the sentiment made more emphatic by the same.

What price could you make me on a quantity?

Yours truly,

[Signed] PAUL B. HANKS.

We print the above simply as a sample of hundreds of letters we are receiving in reference to Max Ehrmann's beautiful wall card:

"A Prayer"

This brief prose poem has taken a strange hold on the hearts of men in all stations of life. You will find it, beautifully framed, in the homes of wealth on Fifth Avenue, New York, as well as in the home where poverty enters. Order a hundred of these cards to-day. They won't last long if you hang one up in your window.

Printed in black and gold, with hand-colored initial.

USEFUL

FRENCH HOME COOKING

By BERTHE JULIENNE LOW

This is no ordinary cook book. It is the first book ever published that will enable any woman, of whatever means, to provide her own table with the dishes that she has hitherto found in this country only on the tables of the very wealthy, or at the expensive restaurants with a French chef. It confines itself chiefly to the more substantial parts of the repast, to the meats and vegetables, etc., in which far more than in desserts, it is difficult to combine variety and relief from the horrors of "plain home cooking." Cloth, 12mo. Illustrated. Postpaid, $1.32; net, $1.20.

THE COUNTRY HOME

By E. P. POWELL

This is the first volume in the "Country Home Library" projected by the publishers. It affords an introduction to the series as a whole, and deals with all the general problems of establishing a home in the country—the house, the barns, the garden, the live-stock, etc., etc. Cloth, large 12mo. Beautifully illustrated. Postpaid, $1.72; net, $1.60.
